East Gippsland Water signs up MWH to deliver engineering services

East Gippsland Water has selected MWH Global to provide the bulk of its engineering services.

East Gippsland Water's Chairperson Joe Rettino (left) and MWH's Peter Robinson mark the start of the three year engineering services contract.

The performance-based agreement commenced on 1 November and will initially run for three years, with a possible two year extension.

MWH boasts world-wide expertise in the water and wastewater industry and significant experience serving water corporations in Victoria.

The company is operating locally out of East Gippsland Water's head office in Bairnsdale, and will be partnering up with local companies, where possible, to implement engineering projects.

MWH Australia Manager of Business Development and Strategy, Peter Robinson, said: "This is an exciting opportunity for MWH to work intimately with a new client to provide an efficient service delivery model, whilst also bringing our global network to the East Gippsland region."

Said East Gippsland Water's Managing Director, Bruce Hammond: "We need to ensure that we continue to offer best value to our customers, in light of very tight economic parameters set by the water industry's economic regulator, the Essential Services Commission. We know that MWH is committed to establishing a base in the region to further strengthen our performance in delivering value for money services."
